DETAILED ACTION

This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species of isolated nucleic acids:

- a) a nucleic acid vector without an insert
- b) a fragment of a vector without a gene insert
- c) an oligonucleotide
- d) a non-coding nucleic acid sequence from a regulatory region of a DNA
- e) a non-coding nucleic acid sequence from an intron
- f) a non-coding nucleic acid sequence from a regulatory region of an RNA
- g) a nucleic acid from a coding strand of a DNA which does not express a protein/peptide
- h) a nucleic acid from an RNA that does not express a protein/peptide
- i) a non-coding nucleic acid sequence not associated with a gene.

The species are independent or distinct because each species of nucleic acid sequence has different structural, chemical, and functional properties. For example, an intronic sequence, a coding sequence, and a regulatory sequence are unrelated in structure and function. Further, a vector comprises numerous different elements not included in isolated regulatory, intronic, or coding sequences. Further, RNA and DNA are chemically distinct. As such, a search for one species is not coextensive with the search for any other species and it would therefore place an undue burden on the examiner to search and examine all species together.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, claims 1-2, 4-20, and 29-34 are generic.

This application further contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species of nucleic acids which encode a cytokine:

- a) IL-2
- b) IL-12
- c) IFN-gamma

The species are independent or distinct because each species of cytokine has different structural, chemical, and functional properties. As such, a search for one species is not coextensive with the search for any other species and it would therefore place an undue burden on the examiner to search and examine all species together.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, all claims are generic.

Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that are elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of species to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of a species may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions or species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions or species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C.103(a) of the other invention.
